

Dr. Gray's Sunday Snapshot

Week of November 26th, 2018

Good Evening King School families, this is Dr. Gray with your Sunday Snapshot for the week of November 26th. I hope you had a restful and enjoyable Thanksgiving weekend, and spent some good quality time as a family.

- On this Wednesday November 28 from 6:30-7:45pm at Quibbletown Middle School, the district will be sponsoring a Literacy Night for parents and students from grades K through 8th. This will be an opportunity to learn more about our literacy curriculum, and to understand how to work with your child at home. We emailed home a flyer last week, and will send it out again prior to Wednesday. If you plan to attend, please RSVP at the email address on the flyer.
- First marking period report cards will be available through the Genesis Parent Module on Tuesday December 4th. Parents, if your child earns all 80's or higher or 90's or higher, you will receive an invitation to attend our Soaring High assembly where we recognize our students' accomplishments (the morning of December 19th for grade 5 & the morning of December 20th for Grade 4). More details will be sent home next week.
- On Saturday December 15th, the district will be sponsoring "Piscataway Codes" day at Piscataway High School at 10:00am. If you have any questions about the event, please contact Mr. Salcedo our digital literacy teacher.
- Parents, as the weather gets colder, please make sure children bring outerwear suitable for the elements. We will continue to take students outside for recess throughout the winter months, and want to make sure they can play comfortably despite the decreasing temperatures. Additionally, please keep in mind that students are not allowed to wear outerwear in the building. If your child has a tendency to be cold, please make sure he or she is wearing a long sleeved shirt, sweater, or sweatshirt.

- This week's school spirit day will be "Flannel Day". Believe it or not, I actually have a flannel shirt that I will be wearing on Friday.

I hope you and your families have a positive and productive week.
